

In 2010 Metal Bulletin Events returns to the Middle East for its landmark 25th International Aluminium Conference. To be held at the luxurious and centrally-located Gulf Hotel, Bahrain, the conference will draw together an international audience of some 500 senior aluminium executives from around the world.

Metal Bulletin Events is pleased to offer members of the International Aluminium Institute a special rate of $1,519 - that is a 20% discount on the current registration fee. To register at this rate please email marketing@metalbulletin.com quoting ref: IAI OFFER, alternatively call Emma Hayward on +44 (0) 20 7779 8886.

2010 is a year of transition for aluminium. Slower than many other commodities to emerge from recession, aluminium will encounter some sizeable hurdles in the next 12 months. Industry is learning to expect the unexpected, but our expert line-up of speakers and panelists will provide you with invaluable insight into the strength and pace of aluminium industry recovery, helping you to make sound and timely business decisions.

No-one in the global aluminium business can afford to ignore developments in the Gulf which in recent months has seen not one but two new large-scale aluminium smelters coming on stream. The Middle East has become the centre of gravity for the aluminium business today, with a rapidly emerging, modern and low-cost smelting community that stretches from Egypt to the Indian Ocean. This year's conference will feature optional visits to three key plants in the region – Alba, Qatalum and Garmco.

Metal Bulletin Events' International Aluminium Conference has become the one unmissable event on the aluminium calendar, giving delegates unrivalled networking opportunities. Indeed, it is the place where many business deals and contracts are shaken on and signed.
